Announcing our new 2020 Health Professions Educator series schedule!

There are several exciting sessions scheduled for the 2020 Health Professions Educator Series facilitated by our very own experts from across the health system. Click here to view the series schedule! Calendar appointments for each session will be sent after the beginning of the new year.

Educator Opportunities:

Get involved, submit something scholarly, or find funding!

Registration open for Maximizing Your Teaching Skills course: This comprehensive program, March 25-27, 2020 in Boston, MA, offers the latest strategies and tools for both new and experienced educators to teach medicine effectively to medical students, residents, fellows, faculty, and allied health professionals. Participants learn best practices to inspire and mentor learners across a wide variety of formats, including lecture, clinical sessions, small groups, at the bedside, and inpatient and ambulatory environments. Click here to learn more and register.

Call for IAMSE Committee Volunteers: IAMSE is seeking a broad representation of professional educators, basic scientists, clinical scientists, and instructional technologists from around the world to volunteers for committee involvement. Volunteers are needed for the Membership Committee and Reviewers for the Medical Science Educator Journal. In general, committee members are expected to be available for a one hour monthly video meeting and accessible by email. If you would like to be considered for a position on either of these committees, please send a brief statement of your interest and qualifications to support@iamse.org by January 6.

Resource Roundup:

2019 MESRE Annotated Bibliography: The newest edition of the Annotated Bibliography of Journals for Educational

Scholarship is now available. In addition to the bibliography, a companion document titled "Quality Indicators for Journals of Medical Education Scholarship" is available here. These resources are extremely useful for work in medical education scholarship, research, and evaluation.

New MPIP Insights for Authors video on "How to Select the Right Journal:" Medical Publishing Insights & Practices (MPIP) has released a new video on How to Select the Right Journal. As part of the MPIP Insights for Authors series, these short videos are intended to support authors in developing medical research publications. Authors may be unsure of where to publish their data and may have their manuscript rejected from several journals before finding the appropriate fit and audience. How to Select the Right Journal presents key considerations, recommendations, insights from journal editors, and useful resources to assist authors with journal selection.

IAMSE Webcast Audio Seminar Series Archives: The International Association of Medical Science Educators (IAMSE) archives for "The Learning Environment in Health Sciences Education," the 2019 Winter Series of the Webcast Audio Seminars are now available online! The Webcast Audio Seminar archives are located on the IAMSE website under the Events heading as Web Seminars. Here, you will be able to search the archives or browse by year and series.
