...planting the seeds of education

In response to increased restrictions communicated by both Virginia Tech and Carilion, we will be postponing or moving to virtual offerings for our upcoming TEACH sessions. Please see more information below and stay tuned!

TEACH Resources for Teaching Online: Making the move to online!

In response to the evolving COVID-19 situation, we are all looking for alternative ways to continue hosting classes and meetings. The article “Going Online in a Hurry: What to Do and Where to Start” is a timely read for all health professions educators. Let this brief article as well as our evolving TEACH Resources for Teaching Online page help guide you through the transition and provide you with tips for making the most of the situation for yourself and learners.

Upcoming Events: March Education Grand Rounds POSTPONED!

We are postponing our previously scheduled March 30-31 Education Grand Rounds due to travel limitations and increased restrictions regarding in-person meetings. These sessions with Susan Cox, MD on “Time Management and Goal Setting for Health Professions Educators” will be rescheduled soon so stay tuned for more information.

Recognition & Rewards: Welcome your new colleagues!

New TEACH Members: Please join us in welcoming our new members for the month of February 2020 – Dr. Michael Bergen (Radiology), Dr. Tasaduq Fazili (Infectious Disease), and Dr. Penelope Muelenaer (Pediatrics).

In case you missed it – 2020 VA Regional Health Sciences Education Symposium

Last month, over 100 health professions educators, researchers and medical students gathered at Virginia Commonwealth University to increase collaboration and improve health professions education research across the region. Virginia Tech Carilion School of Medicine and Carilion Clinic served as co-sponsors for the event and had representatives who served on the event steering committee. To learn more about this collaborative effort, read these great follow-up articles from VCU News and VTCSOM. We hope to see you all at our next VA symposium!
