Thank you from Math 1536!

About this display:

In the days following April 16, many other schools sent posters, cards, and banners to Virginia Tech to express their solidarity and support over the shootings.

On April 23rd and 24th, students in Math 1536 responded by creating thank-you cards to send back to these schools. I felt that encouraging my students to express gratitude rather than grief would be a healthy way to address the tragedy on the

Thank you so much for your prayers and love. It truly means a lot that you care so much. What happened last Monday was horrible. I woke up that day and there were policemen in my dorm. I asked the janitor what happened, and she did not know. All she said was that she knew that it was going to be a bad day. I went to my first class, which was diagonal from Norris Hall. I had a feeling inside that something was just not right. I knew my feelings were accurate when I looked out the window and saw people running to their cars.

Thankfully, one of those people was my older brother. He took me to his apartment that day, where we prayed. I hope that you can look at this tragedy and find strength from it. Finding good in the bad in life is an important lesson to learn. Thank you for your thoughts and concerns. It meant a lot to not only students, but also the entire Hokie community.

THANKS
I send you sincere thanks for all of your thoughts, prayers, and especially your posters and messages. It's been really tough in the last week and knowing that there are lots of people supporting us is a wonderful relief.

Virginia Tech is an amazing place, and we are all shocked and sad that this horrible tragedy happened to our friends and at our school.

I think that, in the process of recovery, the world has begun to realize just how strong we Hokies are, but it's hard to be strong without help, and we are so glad that we have help like you. I lost a friend on April 16, so this has been a hard, scary, and sad time for me. The only thing I can think of to say is Thank you. Your thoughts and messages mean more than you know. Once again, I TRULY THANK YOU, THE HOKIES THANK YOU.
