“He gives power to the faint, and strength to the powerless.
But those who wait on the Lord renew their strength, they shall mount up with wings like eagles, they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not be faint.”

Isaiah 40: 29-31

To complete a task of this magnitude I have been blessed by the benefit of many individuals. I would be remiss to have completed my dissertation without acknowledging their contribution. To my wonderful and loving wife Cinda, I give my undying love and gratitude. As I worked on this project you have endured many sacrifices without any complaints. You have always been there to encourage, support, and assist me throughout this project. To my sons Bray and Trad who supported and encouraged me as I pursued this dream; I thank you for letting this opportunity come true. To my mother and father, John and Elizabeth Sokol, and my mother-in-law, Virginia Irby, who have never waived on their approval, encouragement and recognition of this educational endeavor.

I would also like to thank Raymond H. Frazier Jr., former Superintendent of Public Schools for Jefferson County West Virginia. It was Mr. Frazier who recognized my potential before I did and encouraged me to believe in myself.

To Dr. Joan Hirt, who had no idea what she was in for when she agreed to co-chair my dissertation. Thank you for your patience, your intelligence and for guidance. You have helped me grow professionally and personally.

I give the greatest recognition for the completion of this project to my God, Lord and Savior. God carried me when I couldn't go on and comforted me when I was distressed. As I traveled through my life, God has always placed the right people in my path. Each individual that has had a part in my successes has been placed there by God, for which I am eternally grateful.
