Special thanks first go to Dr.Diane Zahm, who, as co-chair, guided me through the entire process of the research for and writing of this dissertation. Her critical eye, as a scholar and her support as a mentor were indispensable. I would also like to thank Dr.Patricia Edwards, a co-chair, who has been working with me since during my entire stay at VT, even into her retirement.

I would like to extend my gratitude to other committee members – Dr.Suzanne Murrmann, Dr.Patricia Hyer, and Jesse Richardson – for their suggestions and guidance throughout this research.

I also would like to thank Dr.Carol Bailey, of the Sociology department, for helping me to initiate the idea of developing Southeast Asian feminism and for her emotional support. Then, I would like to express my gratitude to Dr.Ted Fuller, also of the Sociology department, who has been helping me from my first day to my last day at VT, who was always there for me when I needed him.

I would like to extend my thanks to all of the KKV staff who provide me information, and to those who responded to the survey. There are many I would like to thank who are not mentioned above, but who helped me to make it through.

Finally, I would like to express my profound gratitude to my parents for all their emotional and financial support. I would like to thank my best friend, Richard Miller, for his understanding of and patience with this lengthy process as well as for his editorial help.
