Raphaël Renault

Raphaël Renault obtained his Baccalauréat in Sciences (with highest honors) in France in 1995. He then spent two years in Lycée Condorcet, Paris, France, in order to prepare for competition to entrance to French National Engineering Schools. Accepted in 1997 at ENSICA (Ecole Nationale Supérieure d'Ingénieurs en Constructions Aéronautiques), an aerospace engineering school, he developed his interests for radar and radionavigation technologies. After two years of study in this school, he applied to complete his last year at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. Accepted first as an exchange student, he had his status changed to a full-time Master student in year 2000, and joined the Center for Wireless Telecommunications in the course of Spring 2000. His research interests include satellite and wireless telecommunication technologies, avionics, and acoustics engineering.
