The image displays a grid of 20 columns and 30 rows. The grid is composed of thin black lines forming a uniform pattern of small squares. There are four vertical lines that act as dividers, creating five distinct vertical sections of varying widths. The first section on the left is the widest, followed by a narrower section, then a section of medium width, then another narrow section, and finally a section of medium width on the right. The grid is otherwise empty and contains no text or data.
