

VITA

Kuan Yao was born on February 3, 1974, in Shanghai, China. In 1992, he entered the undergraduate program of computer science at Zhejiang University, Hangzhou, China. He received Bachelor of Science in Computer Science in 1996.

Upon graduation he worked as a software engineer at China Telecomm. In 1998, he began his graduate study in the Bradley Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering at Virginia Tech. While at Virginia Tech, he participated in the System Level Application of Adaptive Computing project for four semesters. After completing his M.S in Computing Engineering in the spring of 2000, he moved to Falls Church, VA to work for MicroStrategy as a software engineer.