Four Spaces

The Urban Graduate Center consists of four basic spaces ranging from the individual to the collective.

The Library
-a place of study
The library is a place for both students and faculty to investigate and research ideas.

The Auditorium
-a place to meet
The auditorium is the largest space in the center and is intended for collective activities such as lectures that are open to the community at large.

Classrooms
-places to share ideas
The classrooms provide space for students and faculty to exchange ideas with one another.

Professors' Offices
-places of work
The professors' offices are individual spaces and are the most private of the school's program spaces.

The architectural form promotes both interaction and seclusion between the individual and the collective.
