

This book is dedicated to my parents. For me you sacrificed much, supported unconditionally and loved without limit. Thank you.

It is profoundly gratifying to have had the opportunity to work under the care and academic guidance of several talented and inspiring professors at the Washington-Alexandria Architecture Consortium. Thanks to: Jaan Holt, for his extraordinary love, devotion and sacrifice for the pursuit of architecture, to Susan Piedmont-Palladino, for her professionalism, intellect, criticism and concern for all that is worth fighting for, to Ron M. Kagawa for his sensitivity to all that influences our world, his friendship and the reminder that architecture takes on endless forms, to Marco Frascari for his invaluable insight and knowledge, and to Stephen Small for his inexhaustible enthusiasm and opening my eyes to the wonder of the everyday.

Special thanks to my closest friends, James Lagoc, Jason Lau and Ross Gay. Whether together or apart, you are with me.

To Robert Huebner, my brother, best friend and source of greatest inspiration.

Lastly, to my wife Ginger Huebner. This effort is as much a part of you as it is of me. Thank you for the intensity that kept me focused, and the love that will always sustain.
