

dream of
the alley

five red rectangles approximately 5" x 10" constructed on the near center of 23 1/2" x 19" white tracing paper out of red oil pastel, red thread sewing rips from scissor scratches with words from dreams.

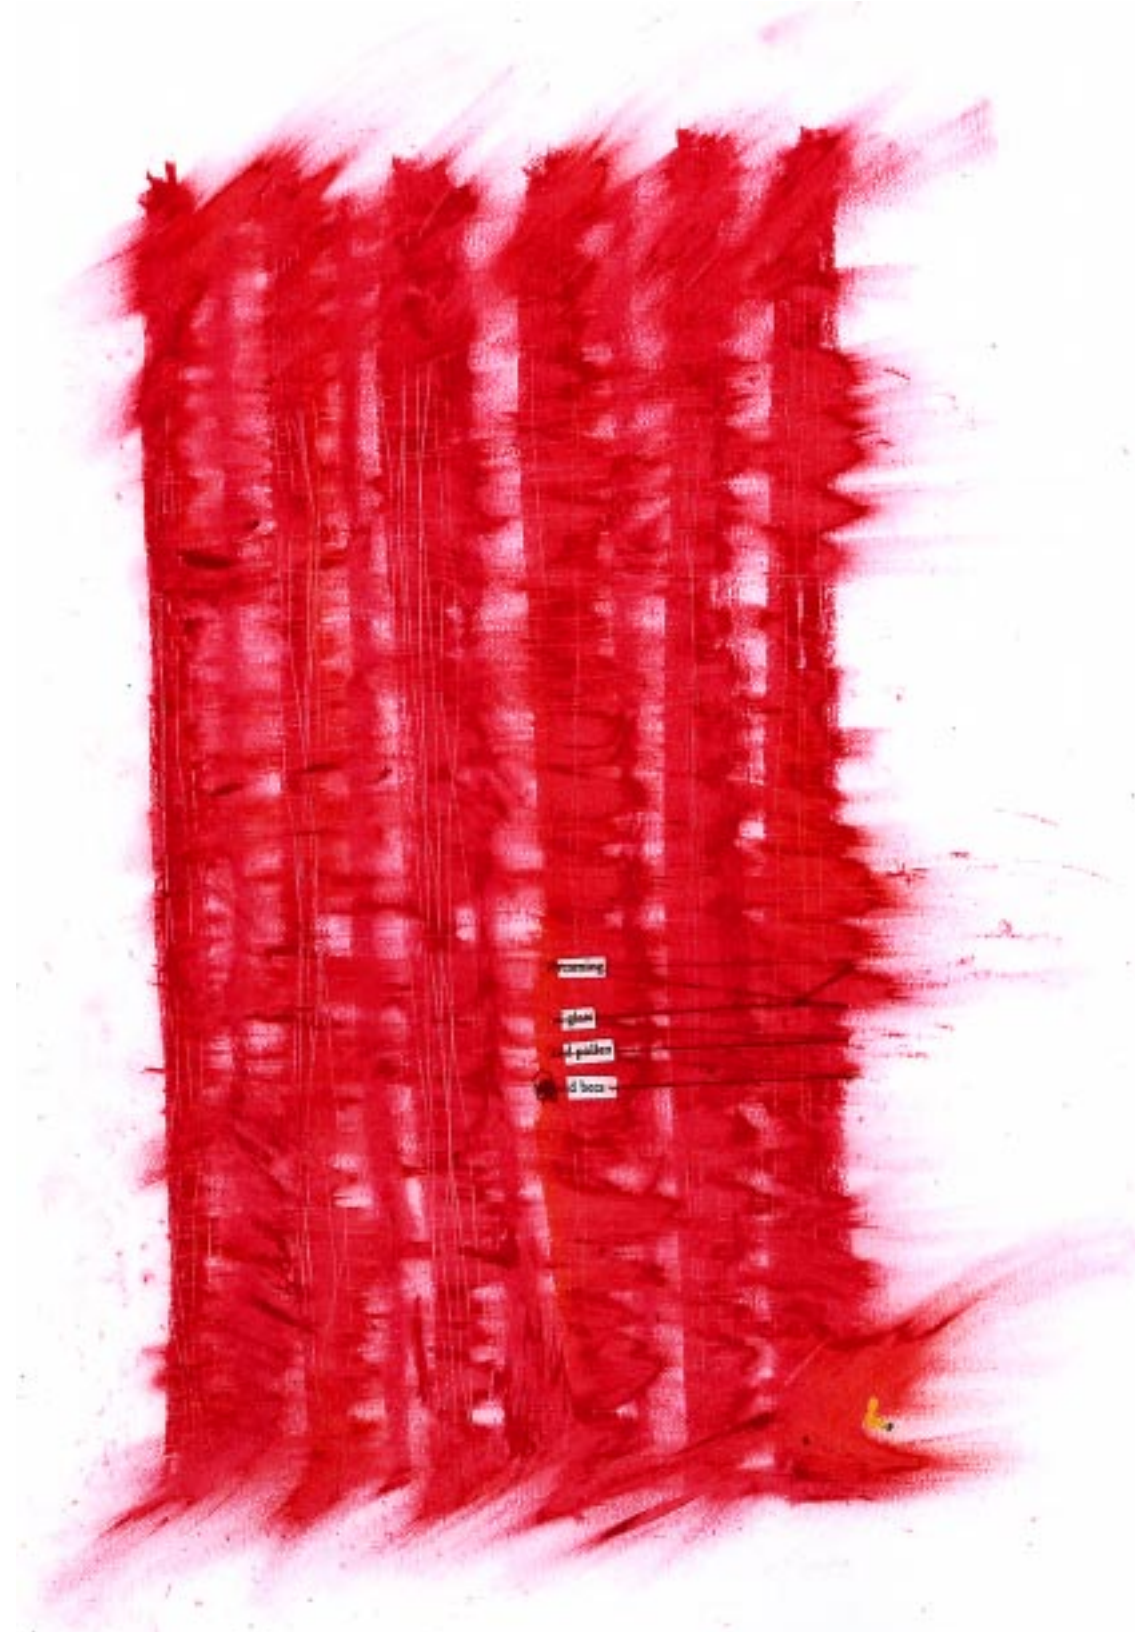

Each side contains the other, revealing this transparency with light.

Each red drawing is a site for the thread construction, the red thread is used to rejoin the rips making text a joint. The transparent nature of the drawings is described by direct contact photographic prints.
