REFERENCES

Chapter 1: Increasing Information Uncertainty in the US Wheat Market: The Case of No. 2 Soft Red Winter Wheat

Chapter 2: The Potential for Expansion in the Grain Sorghum and Barley Markets in Virginia

Brion, L. A. “Economic Analysis of Marketing Grain Sorghum in the Philippines.” Ph.D. dissertation, Department of Agricultural Economics, College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources, Graduate College of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, NE, May 1990.

Richardson, C. R. “Chapter 13 Feedmill Operation, Feed Handling, Processing, and Good Manufacturing Practices.” Introduction to Feedlot Management?

Chapter 3: Producers Guide for Developing Price Expectations for Cotton

Vita

Carrie M. Kennedy, daughter of John A. and Pamela Auletta Kennedy, Jr. of Watertown, NY, completed her MS in Agricultural and Applied Economics at Virginia Polytechnic and State University in January 1997. Upon completion of her degree, Ms Kennedy accepted the position of industry economist at the Commodity Futures Trading Commission’s Division of Economic Analysis in New York City.

Ms Kennedy earned a BA in economics in May 1994 from the John Wiley Jones School of Business, State University of New York College at Geneseo. She also received a New York State Regents High School Diploma from Watertown High School in June 1990.