

Acknowledgments

First and foremost, I would like to thank Dr. Anbo Wang, my advisor and graduate committee chair, for his thoughtful guidance and constant encouragement and for giving me the opportunity to work at FEORC as his graduate student. I am extremely grateful to Dr. Richard O. Claus and Dr. Kent Murphy for their valuable help from time to time.

Special thanks to Ki Dong Oh for being a great colleague, a good friend and a patient advisor during the course of our project. I am greatly indebted to Dr. Vivek Arya for introducing me to FEORC as well as teaching me the basic laboratory skills, you have been a wonderful friend. Thanks to Dr. Marten de Vries for initiating my research in optic fiber and for making my stay at FEORC more informative and interesting.

I would like to thank all the students and staff at FEORC, particularly Linda, Jun, Rob, Lea, Winston, Igor and many others, who have made every bit of my last twenty months here an unforgettable experience. I wish you all good luck in the future.

Finally and most importantly, I am extremely grateful to my parents, my brother, family members and friends, who have always wished the best for me and showered all their love and affection on me in spite of their physical absence.

This work was completely sponsored by the U.S. Air Force Phillips Lab, Hanscom AFB.
