

THE FABRIC OF A NEIGHBORHOOD:
HILTON VILLAGE IN NEWPORT NEWS, VIRGINIA

by
Susan C. Perkins

Thesis submitted to the Faculty of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Architecture.

approved:

D. Eugene Egger, Chairman

May 5, 1995 in Riva San Vitale, Switzerland

Hans Ch. Rott

Keywords: town planning, planned communities, Hilton, Va.

Bruno Keller

thanks to all those who had patience...

THE FABRIC OF A NEIGHBORHOOD:
HILTON VILLAGE IN NEWPORT NEWS, VIRGINIA

by
Susan C. Perkins

D. Eugene Egger, Chairman
Department of Architecture

(ABSTRACT)

This thesis is an analytic study of the fabric of a neighborhood. Using Hilton Village in Newport News, Virginia as an example, the graphic analysis encompasses all levels of the neighborhood fabric and considers several possible interventions thereto. The study includes a brief discussion of the traditions and development of town and community planning, as well as of the social backdrop of the period in which the specific community was developed.

Table of Contents

introduction	page 1
social history	page 2
community planning history	page 3
hilton village history	page 6
neighborhood fabric studies	page 9
elementary pattern studies	page 13
house pattern studies	page 19
possible new patterns	page 27
conclusion	page 32
references	page 33
vita	page 34