Virginia Tech ETD Fair Use Analysis Results

This is not a replacement for professional legal advice but an effort to assist you in making a sound decision.

Name: Sharmin Shamsalsadati

Description of item under review for fair use: Figure 1. Seismic interferometry: turning noise into signal: The Leading Edge, 25, p.1082

Report generated on: 04-07-2013 at : 10:56:06

Based on the information you provided:

Factor 1

Your consideration of the purpose and character of your use of the copyrighted work weighs: in favor of fair use

Factor 2

Your consideration of the nature of the copyrighted work you used weighs: in favor of fair use

Factor 3

Your consideration of the amount and substantiality of your use of the copyrighted work weighs: in favor of fair use

Factor 4

Your consideration of the effect or potential effect on the market after your use of the copyrighted work weighs: against fair use

Based on the information you provided, your use of the copyrighted work weighs: in favor of fair use

Permissions

SEG publishes journals, books, and digital works with the primary aim of disseminating research in and theory and applications of applied geophysics. Consistent with this objective, the Society provides mechanisms for those who seek to reuse or republish material from SEG publications while protecting the viability of the SEG publications program. Any further questions about permissions can be sent via e-mail to the SEG publications department at permissions@seg.org.

Fair use

Authors and publishers may present or republish up to two figures or tables per SEG article or per SEG book without seeking written permission from SEG, provided that full acknowledgment of the source is provided in the new work. If SEG has cited a publication for which it is not the publisher, rights should be obtained from that publisher. SEG considers this fair use. There are no fees associated with this permission. Authors who need documentation that SEG is extending this permission are encouraged to print this message and present it to their publishers. Those who require further documentation should contact the SEG publications director. Requests to use any portion of "Seismic Data Analysis: Processing, Inversion, and Interpretation of Seismic Data" should be directed to the SEG publications director.

Permission granting

Those seeking permission to republish more material than described above should contact the SEG publications director. Such requests should include complete citations of works for which permission to republish is sought. If permission for specific figures or tables is sought, please provide figure and table numbers. Requests should include a description of the work in which the SEG material would be republished. Information about the audience and the intended distribution also should be included. The requests should be prepared on institutional letterhead if the requesting party is representing an institution. License fees are assessed only when the request is for a large amount of material or when the proposed usage is commercial in nature or would limit SEG's market. If a license fee is assessed, it must be paid prior to use or the permission is void.

Purchase redistribution rights online

Those seeking to redistribute SEG publications or portions thereof in print, by fax, or online may purchase permission to do so online. SEG publications are registered with the Copyright Clearance Center, and licenses to redistribute SEG articles and portions of books are obtained through this nonprofit agency. Special pricing is available for university professors, including license to distribute SEG material through electronic course packs. Licenses also are available for distribution of journal articles and expanded abstracts via e-mail or posting on Intranets and Extranets for limited time periods.

Authors' right to redistribute

Authors of articles in GEOPHYSICS, THE LEADING EDGE, and the Technical Program Expanded Abstracts may post their own articles on their personal Web sites or the Web sites of their institutions without obtaining further permission from SEG. Authors of journal articles and Expanded Abstracts retain similar rights for print redistribution. If an author or an author's institution redistributes an author's article online or in print, the original publication venue encompassed in a complete citation and including SEG's status as publisher must be identified. Authors of SEG books, or portions of SEG books, must seek permission from the SEG publications director to redistribute these works in any form. Such permission will not be withheld if SEG's investment in the original publication of the works is not threatened. Questions should be directed to the publications director.

RIGHTS AND NEW BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT - RAS JOURNALS

The department provides a number of services relating to the rights of the Oxford Journals, including:

- Processing permission requests to reproduce content from the Oxford Journals
- Copyright advice and information for learned society partners, authors and their institutions
- Licensing translation rights for the Oxford Journals
- Licensing the right to include Oxford Journals content in Third-party products and services such as aggregators, document delivery, and abstracting and indexing

The department is staffed from 8.30-17.00 (GMT), from Monday to Friday. To contact the department at any other time, please send an email message or a fax.

PERMISSIONS

At Oxford Journals, it is a core part of our objectives to encourage the widest possible dissemination of the journal content published while at the same time ensuring that the rights, including the integrity of our authors and learned society partners research is protected. We believe that the permissions policies we have and the systems in place to facilitate them enable us to achieve this objective.

STM Permissions Guidelines & Signatories: – a key part of our efforts to minimize the administration that is often involved in permission clearances while ensuring that any re-use of limited amounts of content from our journals is fair and the original source of the material fully attributed. It should be emphasized here that these are just guidelines (for further information please click here).

To enable further clarity for the re-use of limited amounts of journal content for academic and scholarly purposes, we are also signatories to the Draft Scholarly Publisher Guidelines for Quotation and other Academic Uses of Excerpts (for further information please click here).

Requests to Reuse Figures

You are not required to obtain permission to reuse figures (including tables) for academic, educational or non-commercial research for the following material proving full acknowledgment is given to the original source including Figure Number, Title of the Article, Author, Journal Title and Volume or Issue.

Post 1998: a maximum of two figures (including tables) from a journal article or five figures per journal issue (unless a separate copyright holder is identified in such figure, in which event permission should be sought from that holder).

Pre 1998: a maximum of five figures (including tables) per journal article.

Other Permission Requests

For all other permission requests please email Journals Permissions clearly stating the material you wish to reuse and the way in which you wish to reuse it.

LICENSING AND NEW BUSINESS

Should you be interested in licensing the right to include Oxford Journal content in your products and/or services please send us an email message or a fax.

TRANSLATIONS/LOCAL EDITIONS OF OXFORD JOURNALS

We license rights for local editions of the Oxford Journals to be produced in more than a dozen countries. Local editions are often translated and contain selected excerpts from the original journal in addition to any local news, views and editorials that are approved.

We would be interested in enquiries to produce local editions of any of the journals on our list. Please submit your enquiry to us here: email message or a fax.

GUIDELINES FOR AUTHORS

When publishing an article in Oxford Journals, for the majority of the titles on our list you are not required to assign copyright to Oxford University Press and/or the learned society concerned. In addition to this, you retain a wide range of rights concerning future re-use of the material as detailed in the Publication Rights Policies section on our Web site (see url below this section).

For the uses specified in that section, please note that there is no need for you to apply for written permission from Oxford University Press in advance. Please go ahead with the use ensuring that a full acknowledgment is made to the original source of the material including the journal name, volume, issue, page numbers, year of publication, title of article and to Oxford University Press and/or the learned society.

The only exception to this is for the re-use of material for commercial purposes, as defined in the information available via the above url. Permission for this kind of re-use is required and can be obtained by using Rightslink by completing the process described above.

Copyright

Authors, their institutions and third parties all have the same rights to reuse articles published in New Journal of Physics in accordance with the Creative Commons Attribution 3.0 Unported (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/3.0/>) (CC-BY) license. This allows the articles to be shared, adapted and made commercial use of subject to appropriate attribution.

Submitting to New Journal of Physics

Authors preparing their articles for submission to IOP journals may wish to include material (such as figures and tables) from the previously published work of other authors. Before doing this, you will need to seek approval from the author and any publisher. The Permission request form (<http://authors.iop.org/atom/help.nsf/0/8BB5EFD772510FDD802570270040506F>) may be used for this purpose. Please ensure that you make it clear when seeking permission that your article will be published on a CC-BY basis.

More details can be found on our Guidelines for authors (<http://authors.iop.org/atom/help.nsf/0/BB0C7FB81A28560B8025701F005AA63E?OpenDocument>) page under the 'Copyright, reproduction and permissions' heading.

If you have any questions on either of these main topics then our list of Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) (http://authors.iop.org/atom/help.nsf/LookupJournalSpecific/WebPermissionsFAQ~) in conjunction with the IOP Ethical Policy (<http://authors.iop.org/atom/help.nsf/0/F18C019D6808524380256F630037B3C2?OpenDocument>) might provide the answers you seek. Alternatively you are welcome to send your enquiry to permissions@iop.org. Please provide as much detail as you can and we will endeavour to answer your questions.

What is copyright? <http://www.copyright.gov/>

Copyright is a form of legal protection for original works of authorship. Copyright covers both published and unpublished works.

What does copyright protect?

Copyright, a form of intellectual property law, protects original works of authorship including literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic works, such as poetry, novels, movies, songs, computer software, and architecture. Copyright does not protect facts, ideas, systems, or methods of operation, although it may protect the way these things are expressed. See Circular 1, Copyright Basics, section "What Works Are Protected", see <http://www.copyright.gov/circs/circ1.html#wwp>

How is a copyright different from a patent or a trademark?

Copyright protects original works of authorship, while a patent protects inventions or discoveries. Ideas and discoveries are not protected by the copyright law, although the way in which they are expressed may be. A trademark protects words, phrases, symbols, or designs identifying the source of the goods or services of one party and distinguishing them from those of others.

What is the difference between copyright infringement and plagiarism?

Copyright infringement occurs when an author's work is reused or republished without the permission of the copyright owner, whether or not author attribution accompanied the reuse.

Plagiarism occurs when an author's work has been reused or republished in such a manner as to make it appear as someone else's work, e.g., without quotation marks and citation of the original work.

Why should I transfer copyright to APS?

Like many other scientific publishers, the American Physical Society (APS) requires authors or their employers to provide transfer of copyright prior to publication. This permits APS to publish the article and to defend against improper use (or even theft) of the article. It also permits APS to mount the article online and to use the article in other forms or media, such as Prola. By the APS transfer agreement, authors and their employers retain substantial rights in the work, as specified in the agreement (<http://forms.aps.org/author/copytrmsfr.pdf>) and discussed in this document.

Why should I transfer copyright to APS before the article is accepted for publication by an APS journal?

Transferring copyright early in the process avoids the possibility of delaying publication if the transfer has to be obtained later in the process. By the terms of the copyright transfer agreement itself, it has no effect until the paper is accepted by an APS journal. The author retains the copyright until acceptance, and has the full freedom, for example, to withdraw the paper from consideration by an APS journal and submit it elsewhere.

Does transferring copyright affect my patent rights?

No. Copyright is separate from any patent rights, and the APS transfer agreement specifically states that patent rights are not affected. However, you should be aware that submitting a manuscript to a journal without first taking steps to protect your patent rights (e.g., filing for a patent) could endanger those rights. Consult your patent attorney.

As the author of an APS-published article, may I post my article or a portion of my article on my own website?

Yes, the author or the author's employer may use all or part of the APS published article, including the APS-prepared version (e.g., the PDF from the online journal) without revision or modification, on the author's or employer's website as long as a fee is not charged. If a fee is charged, then APS permission must be sought. In all cases, the appropriate bibliographic citation and notice of the APS copyright must be included.

What happens if the author has posted an APS-published article on a free access e-print server or on the authors' or institutions' web page and subsequently a fee is imposed for access to those sites?

When a fee is imposed, the author must either obtain permission from APS or withdraw the article from the e-print server or Institutional Repository.

As the author of an APS-published article, may I post my article or a portion of my article on an e-print server?

The author has the right to post and update the article on a free-access e-print server using files prepared and formatted by the author. Any such posting made or updated after acceptance of the article for publication by APS shall include a link to the online abstract in the APS journal or to the entry page of the journal. In all cases, the appropriate bibliographic citation and notice of the APS copyright must be included. If the author wishes to use the APS-prepared version (e.g., the PDF from the online journal) on an e-print server other than authors' or employer's website, then APS permission must be sought. Similarly, if the author wishes to post the article (any version) on an e-print server that charges a fee for use, APS permission must be sought.

As the author of an APS-published article, can I post my article or a portion of my article on a web resource like wikipedia or quantiki?

Sites like wikipedia and quantiki are strict about permissions and require that authors hold copyright to articles that they post there. In order to allow authors to comply with this requirement, APS permits authors to hold copyright to a "derived work" based on an article published in an APS journal as long as the work contains at least 10% new material not covered by APS's copyright and does not contain more than 50% of the text (including equations) of the original article.

As the author of an APS-published article, will I hold copyright to a "derived work", as described above, even if the original article was published prior to 1 October 2008?

Yes. The APS will extend this author right to all papers published in APS journals.

As the author (or the author's employer) of an APS-published article, may I use copies of part or all of my article in the classroom?

Yes, the author or his/her employer may use all or part of the APS-prepared version for educational purposes without requesting permission from the APS as long as the appropriate bibliographic citation is included.

As the author of an APS-published article, may I use figures, tables, graphs, etc. in future publications?

Yes, as the author you have the right to use figures, tables, graphs, etc. in subsequent publications using files prepared and formatted by you or the APS-prepared versions. The appropriate bibliographic citation must be included.

As the author of an APS-published article, may I include my article or a portion of my article in my thesis or dissertation?

Yes, the author has the right to use the article or a portion of the article in a thesis or dissertation without requesting permission from APS provided the bibliographic citation and the APS copyright credit line are given on the appropriate pages.

As the author of an APS-published article, may I give permission to a colleague or third party to republish all or part of the article in a print publication?

Yes, as the author you can grant permission to third parties to republish print versions of the article provided the APS-prepared version (e.g., the PDF from the online journal, or a copy of the article from the print journal) is not used for this purpose, the article is not published in another journal, and the third party does not charge a fee. The appropriate bibliographic citation and notice of the APS copyright must be included.

As the author of an APS-published article, may I give permission to a colleague or third party to republish all or part of the article in an online journal, book, database compilation, etc.?

Authors should direct the third party request to APS.

As the author of an APS-published article, may I provide a PDF of my paper to a colleague or third party?

The author is permitted to provide, for research purposes and as long as a fee is not charged, a PDF copy of his/her article using either the APS-prepared version or the author prepared version.

As a third party (not an author), may I republish an article or portion of an article published by APS?

Yes, APS will grant permission to republish articles or portions of articles (e.g., tables, graphs, excerpts) published by APS. Depending on the reuse and medium APS has the right to grant permission subject to APS terms and conditions and a fee may be assessed.

As a third party, may I use articles published by APS for lecture and classroom purposes?

Yes, you may use photocopied articles published by APS for lecture and classroom purposes for a single semester without asking permission from APS. However, if the article becomes part of your course material beyond one semester, you must obtain permission from APS. Also, there is no limitation on the use of APS articles using links to the material accessible through institutional subscriptions.

How do I request permission to republish APS-copyrighted material?

To request permission to republish APS-copyrighted material, please provide the following information:

1. Title of journal
2. Title of article
3. Name of author
4. Volume number, page number (or article identifier), year
5. Indicate if you are requesting to republish in print, online, CD-ROM, and/or other format
6. Indicate if you wish to republish all or portion of article; if a portion describe the specific material, e.g., figure numbers, excerpt
7. Indicate how the material will be used, e.g., in a book, journal, proceeding, thesis, etc.
8. Indicate the title of the article/thesis/chapter etc., and the name of the publication in which your work will appear
9. Indicate the name of the publisher
10. Indicate whether or not a fee will be charged for the publication

*To prevent clerical error, please include all requests in a single email or letter.

All permission requests must be in writing (email is acceptable). Blanket permissions are not granted. Please note all requests are subject to APS terms and conditions and a fee may be assessed.

Please allow 5-7 business days for us to respond to a permission request provided all the above information is provided at the time of the request.

Send all permission requests to:

Oxford Journals Access & Purchase Publication Rights Policies

PUBLICATION RIGHTS POLICIES

What is our policy?

For the majority of journals¹ published by Oxford University Press, we have a policy of acquiring a sole and exclusive licence for all published content, rather than asking authors to transfer ownership of their copyright, which has been common practice in the past. We believe this policy more carefully balances the interests of our authors with our need to maintain the viability and reputation of the journals through which our authors are accorded status, recognition and widespread distribution. In developing this policy we have been guided by the following principles:

- As a university press and not-for-profit academic publisher, we rely heavily on the good relationships we have with our authors. Having a licensing policy which enables an author to be identified as the owner of the copyright in an article is one of the key ways of demonstrating how highly we value these relationships.
- An exclusive licence enables the centralised and efficient management of permissions and licencing, ensuring the widest dissemination of the content through intermediaries;
- Exclusive rights also enable OUP to take measures on behalf of our authors against infringement, inappropriate use of an article, libel or plagiarism;
- At the same time, by maintaining exclusive rights, in all media for all published content, we can monitor and uphold the integrity of an article once refereed and accepted for publication to be maintained;

Where to get a copy of the Licence to Publish

OUP cannot publish your article until a completed licence form has been received. You should receive a form as soon as your article is accepted for publication.

Footnotes to this section

1. A small number of OUP Journals still have a policy of requesting a full Assignment of Copyright. If unclear about the policy of the Journal concerned, please contact the Editorial office to clarify.

Government employees

- If you are or were a UK Crown servant and the article has been written in that capacity, we have an arrangement with HMSO to enable us to publish it while acknowledging that it is Crown Copyright. Please inform the Editorial office or Oxford University Press at the time of acceptance or as soon as possible that the article is Crown Copyright, so that we can ensure the appropriate acknowledgement and copyright line are used, as required by our arrangement with HMSO.
- If you are a US Government employee and the article has been written in that capacity, we acknowledge that the Licence to Publish applies only to the extent allowable by US law.

Re-use of third party content as part of your Oxford Journals article

- As part of your article, you may wish to reuse material sourced from third parties such as other publishers, authors, museums, art galleries etc. To assist with this process, we have a Permission Request form and accompanying Guidelines that specifies the rights required in order for third party material to be published as part of your Article. For a copy of this form, please email.
- Responsibility for clearing these third party permissions must be borne by the Author, and this process completed as soon as possible - preferably before acceptance of the manuscript, but if not possible, before the Article reaches the Production stage of the process.

Rights retained by ALL Oxford Journal Authors

- The right, after publication by Oxford Journals, to use all or part of the Article and abstract, for their own personal use, including their own classroom teaching purposes;
- The right, after publication by Oxford Journals, to use all or part of the Article and abstract, in the preparation of derivative works, extension of the article into book-length or in other works, provided that a full acknowledgement is made to the original publication in the journal;
- The right to include the article in full or in part in a thesis or dissertation, provided that this not published commercially;

For the uses specified here, please note that there is no need for you to apply for written permission from Oxford University Press in advance. Please go ahead with the use ensuring that a full acknowledgment is made to the original source of the material including the journal name, volume, issue, page numbers, year of publication, title of article and to Oxford University Press and/or the learned society.

The only exception to this is for the re-use of material for commercial purposes, as defined in the information available via the above url. Permission for this kind of re-use is required and can be obtained by using Rightslink:

With Copyright Clearance Center's Rightslink® service it's faster and easier than ever before to secure permission from OUP titles to be republished in a coursepack, book, CD-ROM/DVD, brochure or pamphlet, journal or magazine, newsletter, newspaper, make a photocopy, or translate.

- Simply visit: www.oxfordjournals.org and locate your desired content.
- Click on (Order Permissions) within the table of contents and/ or at the bottom article's abstract to open the following page:
- Select the way you would like to reuse the content
- Create an account or login to your existing account
- Accept the terms and conditions and permission is granted

For questions about using the Rightslink service, please contact Customer Support via phone 877/622-5543 (toll free) or 978/777-9929, or email Rightslink customer care.

Preprint use of Oxford Journals content

For the majority of Oxford Journals, prior to acceptance for publication, authors retain the right to make a pre-print [A preprint is defined here as un-refereed author version of the article] version of the article available on your own personal website and/or that of your employer and/or in free public servers of preprints and/or articles in your subject area, provided that where possible.

- You acknowledge that the article has been accepted for publication in [Journal Title] ©: [year] [owner as specified on the article] Published by Oxford University Press [on behalf of xxxxxx]. All rights reserved.
- Once the article has been published, we do not require that preprint versions are removed from where they are available. However, we do ask that these are not updated or replaced with the finally published version. Once an article is published, a link could be provided to the final authoritative version on the Oxford Journals Web site. Where possible, the preprint notice should be amended to:

Other uses by authors should be authorized by Oxford Journals through the Rights and New Business Development Department.

Additional Rights retained by the Author when publishing in an Oxford Open participating journal

Please note that these rights only apply to content published in an Oxford Journal on an Open Access basis in exchange for payment of an author charge. For more details about how Oxford Open works please click here.

The right to reproduce, disseminate or display articles published under this model for educational purposes, provided that:

- the original authorship is properly and fully attributed;
- the Journal and OUP are attributed as the original place of publication with the correct citation details given;
- if an article is subsequently reproduced or disseminated not in its entirety but only in part or as a derivative work this must be clearly indicated
- the right to deposit the postprint and/or URL or PDF of the finally published version of the article into an institutional or centrally organized repository, immediately upon publication

Commercial Use of Open Access version

For all articles published under a Creative Commons Attribution Licence (CC BY 3.0) or an Open Government Licence permission is not required to make any kind of commercial use of the material.

For all articles published under a Creative Commons Non-Commercial Attribution Licence (CC BY NC 3.0) or a Non-Commercial Government Licence permission is required for all commercial reuse. In order to request permission please contact the Rights and New Business Development department; you want to use and a brief description of the intended use.

Commercial re-use guidelines for open access content

Definition of commercial use: any re-use of material from the Open Access part of an Oxford Journal for the commercial gain of the user and/or their employing institution. In particular,

- re-use by a non-author/third party/other publisher of parts of or all of an article or articles in another publication (journal or book) to be sold for commercial purposes. Permission to reproduce selected figures will generally be granted free of charge, although OUP reserves the right to levy a fee for the use of these and/or the full text of an article/articles
- the proactive supply of multiple print or electronic copies of items taken from the Journal to third parties on a systematic basis for marketing purposes. Permission for this kind of reuse should be obtained from the publisher, who retains the right to levy an appropriate fee
- re-use by an author of parts of or all of an article in other publications from commercial organizations. Permission for this kind of reuse should be obtained from the publisher. We would consider this to be commercial reuse but would not normally charge a permission fee if the author is involved.

NB: Please note that any income generated from permissions granted for this kind of use will be returned directly to the journal itself in order to help minimise the costs of making content from it available on an Open Access basis.

Permissions

- All requests to reuse the article, in whole or in part, in another publication will be handled by Oxford Journals. Unless otherwise stated, any permission fees will be retained by the Journal concerned. Where possible, any requests to reproduce substantial parts of the article (including in other Oxford University Press publications) will be subject to your approval (which is deemed to be given if we have not heard from you within 4 weeks of the permission being granted).
- If copyright of the article is held by someone other than the Author, e.g. the Author's employer, Oxford Journals requires non-exclusive permission to administer any requests from third parties. Such requests will be handled in accordance with Notes 6 above.
- The Journal is registered with the Copyright Licensing Agency (London) and the Copyright Clearance Center (Danvers, Massachusetts), and other Reproduction Rights Organizations. These are non-profit organizations which offer centralised licensing arrangements for photocopying on behalf of publishers such as Oxford University Press.
- Please forward requests to re-use all or part of your article, or to use figures contained within it, to the Rights and New Business Development Department.
