Great Shorthorn Individuals.

The exact origin of the Shorthorn breed of cattle is more or less vague. These cattle, however, lived for a long time in northern England before they developed characteristics that caused them to get recognition as a breed.

As a breed, the Shorthorns had their origin mostly in Northeastern England in the counties of Durham, Northumberland, Lincoln, Cumberland, and York. Originally the cattle from this section were known as "Durhams", but later the term "Shorthorn" was used, due to the fact that the breeders had, by careful selection and breeding shortened the horns of the native "long-horned" cattle. Due to the popularity of the Teeswater and Holderness types of cattle, it is quite natural for one to conclude that these were instrumental in the development of the Shorthorn breed. About 1750, bulls from Holland were imported into Durham and the surrounding territory which were used with no ill effects. Of those whose active work as early improvers of the breed should be mentioned the names of Colling Brothers, who aroused the interest and enthusiasm of farmers to the development of excellent types of beef cattle.

Following close after Colling Brothers may be seen the Booths, who during the first half of the Nineteenth Century worked for the betterment of the Shorthorn breed. The Booths selected and bred for a large and rugged animal which would grow and make consistent gains until four or five years of age. At this time the early American cattle men wanted just such a type of animal to roam and graze upon the rich grass lands at their disposal. Later, however, as the cost of production increased, the attention of breeders was turned towards either an earlier maturing beef type or that of a milking type. Here Thomas Bates of England, being a believer in the milking type, set to work with the determination of establishing such a type for the Shorthorn breed. Many of the most noteworthy milking Shorthorns of to day are descended from the "Bates" Shorthorns. While Bates was working to improve the milking type, Amos Cruickshank of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, set to work for no other purpose than to develop a beef type that would mature earlier, would be more rugged, and stronger constitutionally. This he succeeded in doing and to day the so-called "Scotch" Shorthorns originated by Amos Cruickshank, are the most popular when it comes to the production of beef cattle.

The three great strains of Shorthorns have been the Booth, Bates, and Cruickshank or Scotch. The Bates represents the so-called dual-purpose or milking type, while the Booth and Scotch represent the truest type.

It is of extreme interest to notice that in the very beginning Amos Cruickshank in building up his herd practiced inbreeding which from year to year became more and more intensified.

The sire and dam of Lancaster Comet (11663) were got by the same bull. Lancaster Comet (11663) was a bull with a big rough head and horns of great length. No particular attention was given this bull. He was allowed to run out in the field the entire fall which brought on a severe attack of rheumatism, terminating finally in death. Not more than a dozen calves were sired by him. However, Champion of England (17526), a bull that attracted no special attention, came among this lot. As a result what might be termed the four foundation bulls of the breed, Bridesman (30586); Caesar Augustus (25704); Grand Monarque (21867); and Grand Duke of Gloster (26288); were sired by Champion of England (17526).

From the almost continuous practice of inbreeding, Mr. Cruickshank succeeded in establishing a well-fixed type of short-legged broad-ribbed, thick fleshed cattle, feeding and maturing satisfactorily at an early age. This same concentration of blood that served in fixing such desirable characteristics insured the prepotency of the stock for reproduction as well.

In making a study of table II, it is found that four out of the first five bulls heading table I trace to Grand Duke of Gloster (26288), a son of Champion of England (17526), and who was considered the best of all his sons. A further study of the genealogy table, reveals the fact that Roan Gauntlet (35284) the most famous of all early shorthorn stock bulls was produced by the mating of the inbred Royal Duke of Gloster (29864) with the Champion of England Cow Princess Royal.

Tracing to Dublane (65995) a son of Roan Gauntlet (35284), we find Whitehall Sultan 163573, who is responsible for fourteen sons as outstanding individuals in the Shorthorn breed. The most prominent of the fourteen was Avondale 245144 who as noticed from table I has the highest score of any of the Shorthorn bulls.

An army of soldiers firing at random accomplishes no less than an army of breeders who have no particular aim in breeding operations other than the natural increase in numbers. With the Shorthorn breeders it is a particularly noticeable fact that they give very little consideration to the merits of the male but instead much emphasis is placed on the breeding and selection of females. In the data to follow, it is the purpose to point out the part played by bulls in the development of the breed. It is very true, however, that the best individuals are produced as a result from a cross of the best females with good males, but just here an attempt to point out in the following tables that in the herd or breed as a whole sires are more potent factors than are the females. This is due, however, not to the inability of a female to produce offspring with her characteristics stamped in them, but due to the fact that she has less chance than the male. The characteristics of a male may be stamped on approximately 100 individuals in one season, while, on the other hand, the female is usually limited to one. Therefore, from the standpoint of numbers, the offspring of a bull during a lifetime would be almost unlimited as compared to that of a cow.

Bearing in mind the influence of a sire upon a breed, it is the intention of this particular study as taken from the prize winners of the great International Livestock Exposition to more forceably point out this fact.

It will be noted that in the tables to follow, all animals capable of winning fourth prize or better in the open classes for breeding purposes at the International from the year 1900 - 1922 inclusive, are considered as the best representatives of the breed. Due to the fact, however, that the International Livestock Exposition is merely a place at which the prize winners from the various state fairs and other smaller shows are brought together every fall for final judgment and placed according to their ability, as seen by the judges, to conform with the chief characteristics of the breed.

In Table I, the sires are listed according to the total score given them by the Winnings of their offspring.

The sires of this breed were scored by the following method: Each fourth prize winner gives to its sire a credit of 1 point; a third prize winner, a credit of 2 points; a second prize winner, a credit of 3 points; a first prize winner, a credit of 4 points; and a grand champion, a credit of 6 points. For example, Avondale 245144, the sire to head Table I, produced offspring that won 4 grand championships, 5 junior or senior championships, 15 first, 11 seconds, 10 thirds, and 9 fourths. A score of 171 is credited the sire for these winnings, giving a credit greater than that of any other bull of the breed.

In the table to follow abbreviations are used; GC-Grand Champion; C-Senior or Junior Champion; 1-First Prize; 2-Second Prize-3- Third Prize; 4-Fourth Prize.

The genealogy of the most outstanding sires of the Shorthorn breed, or rather those capable of holding a place in Table I with 6 or more points to their credit, is shown in Table II. In making a study of this genealogy table, the fact is clearly and forceably brought out, that the sires really successful in the production of show ring winners have been descended through sires of a common ancestry. In this table only the male lineage of the truly great animals are given, therefore, it will be noticed that no females are included.

Table II is read as follows: The sire that heads the table, or the first sire listed, is the animal from which all included in that particular table have been descended. Should a sire have but one son the name of this one is placed slightly to the right and just under the name of the sire. If there be more than one renown son a perpendicular line is dropped from under the first letter of the sire's name along which the sons are listed and numbered. For example, the following animals are listed according to the lineage through which they trace to the first sire or the one heading the table. Champion of England (17526), the third animal listed, is a son of Lancaster Comet (11663) who in turn is a son of The Queen's Roan (7398). In following the perpendicular line dropped from Champion of England (17526) it will be noticed that he has four sons of prominence listed. Of these, the first three, Bridesman (30586), Caesar Augustus (25704) and Grand Monarque (21867) found on the first page show, by the method already described, the lineage of the leading individuals tracing to each, while Grand Duke of Gloster (26288) the fourth son is listed on page four of the same table and under which as well as the others are listed their respective descendents.

The large number just after the name of each animal listed represents the herd book number of the individuals involved. If the animal has not been imported or was imported at a rather recent date and with no American herd book number, the English number is given but it is placed within parenthesis. The seven numbers separated by hyphens and enclosed by parentheses, following the herd book number of certain sires, give the winnings of the offspring of the sire to the left, along with the score of the sire himself. Should sires be listed whose offspring never won so much as a fourth prize or better at the International, the last group of numbers were not attached. In this group of numbers, the first represents the number of grand championships won by the sons and daughters of any sire; the second, the number of senior or junior championships; the third; the number of first prizes; the fourth, the number of second prizes; the fifth, the number of third prizes; the sixth, the number of fourth prizes; and the seventh, or last number represents the total score of the sire.

In table III is found a list of the senior and junior champions, as well as grand champion Shorthorns at the International for every year from 1900 - 1922 inclusive, with the exception of 1914 and 1915 at which time the presence of the Foot and Mouth disease prevented the assembling of cattle. In every case the exhibitor and sire of the champion is listed below the name.

A study of Table III in connection with Table I, plainly shows that sires capable of getting first class offspring, had themselves, in many instances, won championship honors.

In making a survey of the genealogy table, it is found that with one exception, the first five bulls listed in Table I, trace to Grand Duke of Gloster (26288) a son of the Champion of England (17526) and to whom the fifth bull traces as well.

The high scoring animals of the get of Sire classes as shown in Table IV, compare very favorably to those of Table I. Here, again, the influence of a good sire for the betterment of the breed is rather striking.

In conclusion, it might be of interest to note that only sires Capable of getting offspring that can be classed among the greatest of the breed are listed in Table I. Due to the fact, however, that rarely does a poor typed individual get high classed animals as offspring. For this reason it seems safe to assume that a majority of the sires found in this study, were themselves individuals of excellent type.
