To whom it may concern,

I am an author on the paper M. Meeker, et. al., Appl. Phys. Lett. 102, 222102 (2013) [<http://dx.doi.org/10.1063/1.4808346>], and am currently writing my thesis using the manuscript format, where I can use full journal articles in which I have made a significant contribution to, for example, I would have said article and figures verbatim, with maybe a few formatting changes. According to the rightslinks link, it is free for me to do so. However, one of the options was for an excerpt>800 words, and I would like confirmation that this would pertain to the whole article, or if I need another type of permission.

Name: Michael Meeker

To whom it may concern,

I would like to reuse an article for which I am a coauthor:

M. A. Meeker, B. A. Magill, G. A. Khodaparast, D. Saha, C. J. Stanton, S. McGill, and B. W. Wessels Phys. Rev. B 92, 125203 (2015)

10.1103/PhysRevB.92.125203

For part of my thesis in the manuscript format, where I would be reusing the whole article, aside from a few minor stylistic changes. From the FAQ, it would appear that I have permission to do so as long as I include the bibliographic information and copyright credit line. So would I put

M. A. Meeker, et al., Phys. Rev. B 92, 125203 (2015). Reprinted with permission from ©2016 American Physical Society.

As the header on the first page of the section, or is there another preferred format. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Michael

Dear Michael,

Your credit line looks great and putting it on first page of the section is perfect.

As the author, you have the right to use the article or a portion of the article in a thesis or dissertation without requesting permission from APS, provided the bibliographic citation and the APS copyright credit line are given on the appropriate pages.

Best wishes,
