AUTHOR RIGHTS

1. You hereby assert your moral rights to be identified as the author of the Article according to US Copyright law.
2. You are permitted to use the material in the ways described in the Schedule of Author's Rights providing that you meet all the conditions set out in the Schedule. These are rights which are personal to you and cannot be transferred by you to anyone else.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL <https://s100.copyright.com/AppDispatchServlet#formTop>. The page header includes the Copyright Clearance Center logo, the RightsLink logo, and navigation buttons for Home, Create Account, Help, and an email icon. The main content area features a Taylor & Francis logo and a 'Journal Reprints' button. The article metadata is as follows:

Title:	E-Progression of Nonprofit Organization Websites: U.S. Versus Thai Charities
Author:	Kristin Kirk, Alan Abrahams, Peter Ractham
Publication:	Journal of Computer Information Systems
Publisher:	Taylor & Francis
Date:	Jul 2, 2016

Below the metadata, it states "Rights managed by Taylor & Francis". To the right of the metadata is a 'LOGIN' button and a text box that reads: "If you're a copyright.com user, you can login to RightsLink using your copyright.com credentials. Already a RightsLink user or want to learn more?"

Thesis/Dissertation Reuse Request

Taylor & Francis is pleased to offer reuses of its content for a thesis or dissertation free of charge contingent on resubmission of permission request if work is published.

How to post your article on websites or repositories (Green open access)

Author's Original Manuscript (AOM)

This is your original manuscript (often called a “preprint”), and you can share this as much as you like. If you do decide to post it anywhere, including on a scholarly collaboration network, we would recommend you use an amended version of the wording below to encourage usage and citation of your final, published article (the Version of Record).

Accepted Manuscript (AM)

As a Taylor & Francis author, you can post your Accepted Manuscript (AM) on your personal website at any point after publication of your article (this includes posting to Facebook, Google groups, and LinkedIn plus linking from Twitter). To encourage citation of your work (and be able to monitor and understand who is reading it using article metrics), we recommend that you insert a link from your posted AM to the published article on Taylor & Francis Online with the following text:

“This is an Accepted Manuscript of an article published by Taylor & Francis in [JOURNAL TITLE] on [date of publication], available online: [http://www.tandfonline.com/\[Article DOI\]](http://www.tandfonline.com/[Article DOI]).”

For example: “This is an Accepted Manuscript of an article published by Taylor & Francis Group in Africa Review on 17/04/2014, available online: <http://www.tandfonline.com/10.1080/12345678.1234.123456>.”

N.B. Using a DOI will form a link to the Version of Record on Taylor & Francis Online.

The AM is defined by the National Information Standards Organization as:
“The version of a journal article that has been accepted for publication in a journal.”

This means the version that has been through peer review and been accepted by a journal editor. When you receive the acceptance email from the Editorial Office we recommend that you keep a copy of your AM for any future posting.

Embargoes apply if you are posting the AM to an institutional or subject repository, or to a scholarly collaboration network such as Mendeley.

COPYRIGHT TRANSFER AGREEMENT

Date: 2016-05-26

A. PERMITTED USES BY CONTRIBUTOR

1. Accepted Version. The Owner licenses back the following rights to the Contributor in the version of the Contribution that has been peer-reviewed and accepted for publication, but not final (the "Accepted Version"):

- a. The right to self-archive the Accepted Version on the Contributor's personal website, in the Contributor's company/institutional repository or archive, in Compliant SCNs, and in not for profit subject-based repositories such as PubMed Central, subject to an embargo period of 12 months for scientific, technical and medical (STM) journals and 24 months for social science and humanities (SSH) journals following publication of the Final Published Version. There are separate arrangements with certain funding agencies governing reuse of the Accepted Version as set forth at the following website: <http://www.wiley.com/go/funderstatement>. The Contributor may not update the Accepted Version or replace it with the Final Published Version. The Accepted Version posted must contain a legend as follows: This is the accepted version of the following article: FULL CITE, which has been published in final form at [Link to final article]. This article may be used for non-commercial purposes in accordance with the Wiley Self-Archiving Policy [<http://olabout.wiley.com/WileyCDA/Section/id-820227.html>].
- b. The right to transmit, print and share copies of the Accepted Version with colleagues, including via Compliant SCNs (in private research groups only before the embargo and publicly after), provided that there is no systematic distribution of the Accepted Version, e.g. posting on a listserv, network (including SCNs which have not signed up to the STM sharing principles) or automated delivery.

Hi Gail and Kristin,

My apologies for letting this fall through the cracks. No need to for you to apologize! This case is unique, so I appreciate you confirming with me.

I believe it was the case that the accepted article would constitute less than half of the final work, so Kristin certainly has permission to reuse her article in her dissertation. Since this is a case where the article is being reused first and not being deposited only by itself in the repository, I do not find it necessary to enforce the embargo period for the accepted version. She has permission to reuse the article, and to deposit her dissertation (containing the accepted version) in her institutional repository. She should still include the red text below.

Please let me know if there is anything further I can help with.

Best,
Josh
