

I reused contents from a co-authored paper that was published in IEEE in Chapter 4 and Section 3.4 of my thesis. I have included the appropriate copyright notice in those sections by following the guidelines provided by IEEE. The guidelines are captured in the image below and can be found in this link.

Can I reuse my published article in my thesis?

You may reuse your published article in your thesis or dissertation without requesting permission, provided that you fulfill the following requirements depending on which aspects of the article you wish to reuse.

- Text excerpts: Provide the full citation of the original published article followed by the IEEE copyright line: © 20XX IEEE. If you are reusing a substantial portion of your article and you are not the senior author, obtain the senior author's approval before reusing the text.
- Graphics and tables: The IEEE copyright line (© 20XX IEEE) should appear with each reprinted graphic and table.
- Full text article: Include the following copyright notice in the references: "© 20XX IEEE. Reprinted, with permission, from [full citation of original published article]."

When posting your thesis on your university website, include the following message:

"In reference to IEEE copyrighted material which is used with permission in this thesis, the IEEE does not endorse any of [name of university or educational entity]'s products or services. Internal or personal use of this material is permitted. If interested in reprinting/republishing IEEE copyrighted material for advertising or promotional purposes or for creating new collective works for resale or redistribution, please go to http://www.ieee.org/publications_standards/publications/rights/rights_link.html to learn how to obtain a License from RightsLink. If applicable, University Microfilms and/or ProQuest Library, or the Archives of Canada may supply single copies of the dissertation."

Only the accepted version of your article, not the final published version, may be posted online in your thesis.

Hi Joey,

Can I reuse (reprint) the contents (text, figures, tables etc) from our paper in my thesis?

Thank you,
Lakshman

Hi Lakshman,

Of course, thank you for asking. I'm looking forward to seeing it.
