

MASSING EXPLORATION

In exploring the various limits and opportunities of the site, I completed a series of massing models. Each reacted to the surrounding context with respect to height, access, entry, and the site's most defining feature - the neighboring Rock Creek Park. The massing study allowed for a free use of element and form with minimal concern for predetermined program requirements.