Susannah Mary Logsdon was born October 7, 1971 in Barberton Ohio where she spent the first eighteen years of her life. The youngest of five children, Susannah could always be found at the park hanging from the monkey bars, playing basketball, or any other sport for that matter, or just riding her hot pink Huffy bike. She first picked up a basketball at the tender age of six, and that was all she wrote. Though she loved all sports, basketball would be where she excelled. An honor student through her entire scholastic career, she received numerous all state honors in basketball in high school. She graduated high school as class president and had accepted a full scholarship to play division I basketball at Virginia Tech where she would lead her team to their first conference championship in school history.

After receiving her B.S. in Biology, Susannah took some time off to work and clear her head before deciding to go after her M.S. in Exercise Physiology. Following graduation, she hopes to open her own lemonade/fitness stand in the Bahamas where she is absolutely sure there is a need for exercise physiologists.
