

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

There are many people who greatly influenced my graduate experience and without whom this work could not be possible. I would like to thank Steve Sellers for his support in taking that first step. I would like to express my deepest thanks to my parents, Robert F. Blevins and Peggy Blevins for their years of endless support and constant inspiration in my life. I would not be here if it weren't for you.

I would like to thank my committee chair, Carol Bailey, who served as a mentor both personally and professionally. Her endless encouragement and input greatly contributed to my success. I would also like to thank Jill Kiecolt for her amazing attention to detail and expert opinion in the area of social psychology. I would like to thank Skip Fuhrman for turning me on to social theory and for his input on this project.

Next, thanks to Christina Falci for her friendship and for taking time from her schedule to save me in the last days. Also, a thank you to Beth Mabry for her efficient data analysis skills. I would also like to thank the faculty that I have studied under and of course the staff of the Sociology department for all of their help.

I would also like to thank my roommate, Rand Dotson, for understanding and in general winning the best roommate award. And a very special thank you to Kirsten Reller, who emerged just in time to save me. Her presence beside me and her endless support continues to give me strength.

Table of Contents

Acknowledgment.....	III
Table of Contents.....	IV
Chapter I: Introduction Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV): Statement of the Problem Among the College Student Population.....	1
Chapter II: Theory and Review of Literature.....	5
Chapter III: Methodology.....	17
Chapter IV: Data Analysis.....	20
Chapter V: Conclusions and Discussion.....	31
Bibliography.....	39
Table I.....	44
Table II.....	45
Appendix A.....	46
Appendix B.....	47
Curriculum Vitae.....	54