

Acknowledgments

First and foremost, I would like to thank my advisor, Dr. Robert Lickliter, for his support, guidance, and mentorship throughout my graduate career at Virginia Tech. He has truly been a guiding force in my quest for self-actualization. Additionally, thanks for providing laboratory space and subjects, without which this project would not have been possible. I would also like to thank my committee members, Dr. Martha Ann Bell, Dr. Joseph Franchina, Dr. Bruce Friedman, Dr. David Harrison, and Dr. Ellie Sturgis for their helpful suggestions and comments for the improvement of this project. Thank you all for providing intense intellectual stimulation and thorough training in an encouraging atmosphere throughout my graduate career. You all have given me excellent models of how to become a productive, positive, top-notch professional.

I wish to wholeheartedly thank Laura Eichenlaub, Rachel Kadetsky, Alis Jennings, Erica Lewkowicz, Jennifer McGorry, Jessica Riley, and Gina Ward for their cheerful and dependable assistance with data collection and animal care.

Additionally, I would like to thank my family, Marvin, Wanda, Wendy, and Marcy Foushee for their moral support and encouragement while I have been in graduate school. I also wish to thank my friends, Kent Eaton, Dr. Merry J. Sleight, and Dr. Joseph Germana for their friendly advice and encouragement during this process.
