

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Many individuals have provided advice, encouragement, and support to me in the completion of this dissertation. I would like to express gratitude to my committee chairperson, Dr. Curtis Finch. He provided guidance and timely help that enabled me to complete my program of study and provided direction to my research. I have learned substantially from his uncompromising emphasis on quality and meaningful research, and the importance of the writing medium in research.

I would also like to thank my committee members, Dr. Patrick O'Reilly, Dr. Mark Sanders, Dr. Daisy Stewart, and Dr. Mark Widdowson for their critical suggestions and advice in various meetings that set the direction and focus for my research. Every committee meeting proved significant in advancing my dissertation. Appreciation is also due to the late Dr. Nevin Frantz, who I was fortunate enough to have as an advisor. He played a major role in helping to shape my plan of studies.

I appreciate the excellent and prompt services provided by the interlibrary loan staff at Virginia Tech who have demonstrated the power of electronic communications in information retrieval.

Appreciation is also extended to the following military researchers who provided valuable references and citations to military studies used in my dissertation: Dr. Theodore Schlechter, Dr. Dexter Fletcher, and Dr. Harry O'Neill.

Finally, I wish to acknowledge my late father, Yaakub, and my mother, Rafidah as being the source of inspiration in my studies.
